

News > Canvas > ADA Compliance

ADA Compliance

2020-06-24 - Taylor Kahny - Canvas

As students across the University have unique, diverse needs that may require assistive technologies, faculty should understand Penn's accommodation process and the role that the Penn Nursing Online Learning team plays in facilitating many forms of accommodation for Nursing students. For optimal results, please make sure to involve our team early and often so we can help set your students up for success in a timely fashion.

After students submit documentation of a disability to Student Disabilities Services (SDS) and once they receive written approval of accommodations from SDS, the instructors will receive a letter verifying the accommodations for each student. When your course first receives a SDS request, please notify the Nursing Online Learning team at servicedesk@nursing.upenn.edu for the Canvas and Panopto-related accommodations described below. For questions about other types of student accommodations, reach out directly to Weingarten Learning Resources Center staff for assistance.

The following sections outline best practices for the accommodation request process.

Learning/Assessment Accommodations

A common request for learning accommodations is extended time for in-class tests and quizzes. SDS has a set of standards in place for exam accommodation. These standards include the student signing the Penn Code of Academic Integrity, the instructor informing the student about the extended exam end time prior to the beginning of the exam, and the permitted exam window during the proctored time period.

For extended exam time requests, course faculty will need to add extra time to the student's Canvas quiz attempt. Faculty needing assistance should contact servicedesk@nursing.upenn.edu at least 48 hours before the start of the exam.

Canvas guide: adding extra time and attempts in Canvas quizzes

Important exam information for students requesting accommodations

Deaf/Hard of Hearing Accommodations

In the remote learning environment, pre-recorded lectures and other video content are an important element of the learning process. The School of Nursing uses 3Play Media, a captioning and transcription company, that integrates with our Panopto video workflow. After completion by request, ADA Section 508-compliant captions are automatically uploaded and available to toggle on and off for each video for which it has been requested.

When a student is hard of hearing and requests closed captioning through SDS, notify the Penn Nursing Online Learning team immediately so that captions may be made available to the student in a timely fashion. To request captions, please email servicedesk@nursing.upenn.edu.

Please note: standard turnaround time for captioning is between 4 to 10 business days.

Visual Impairment Accommodations

As some students may use screen readers that assist with keyboard usage to navigate web pages, visual impairment is another important accommodation to consider when distributing teaching and learning materials remotely. For reading materials that need e-text conversion for use with screen reading software, as an instructor, please reference the Alternative Format Materials guide shared by Weingarten Learning Resources Center here: https://www.vpul.upenn.edu/lrc/sds/alternative_format. There are procedures in place for students to request e-text and other alternative formats (even for textbooks) through their office.

In addition, faculty can ensure that Canvas course materials are accessible to all students, including those who require assistive technology, through the use of universal design features like headers and alt-text. Contact servicedesk@nursing.upenn.edu to learn more.

Assistive technology at Penn

Alternative format course materials

Universal design in Canvas